

FREE UNIVERSITY OF ESSEX

June 24-27, 1968

The Free University sprang out of an immediate need: to discuss all those issues suddenly revealed by the confrontation between the Vice-Chancellor and Senate, and the majority of the University. These issues were: the power structure of the University, the validity of the examination system, the nature and purpose of knowledge, the concept of free speech, etc.

These issues are as alive as ever, though no immediate 'provocation' fires them. Discussion must continue; we cannot be satisfied with the present University structure and this in turn poses problems about British society. The Free University, therefore, will reassemble during the last week of term. Naturally, all those who wish to come - students and non-students alike - will be welcome.
